Manoa Public Library Awarded Prestigious LEED Gold Certification

Manoa Public Library has been awarded the coveted Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design (LEED) Gold Certification established by the U. S. Green Building Council (USGBC) and verified by the Green Building Certification Institute. The joint announcement by the Hawaii State Public Library System (HSPLS) and the Department of Accounting and General Services (DAGS) is the result of both agencies' cooperative efforts to ensure that the new Manoa Public Library is now a LEED Gold building.

LEED® is the nation's preeminent program for the design, construction and operation of high performance green buildings.

"Manoa Public Library, which opened on June 9, 2012, is the first Oahu library to be honored with a LEED Gold Certification," said State Librarian Richard Burns. "Manoa Public Library and North Kohala Public Library on the Big Island, the first HSPLS library to achieve LEED Gold Certification, are outstanding examples of future public libraries in Hawaii."

Manoa Public Library is a $10.3 million, 29,425-square-foot library located at 2716 Woodlawn Drive, the site of the original library. Designed by architect Gary Kawakami of Architecture Plus, Inc., the Library achieved LEED Gold certification for energy, lighting, water and materials use as well as for incorporating a variety of other sustainable strategies.

"Manoa Public Library's LEED Gold Certification demonstrates tremendous green building leadership," said Rick Fedrizzi, President, CEO & Founding Chair of the U.S. Green

Building Council. "The urgency of USGBC's mission has challenged the industry to move faster and reach further than ever before, and Manoa Public Library serves as a prime example with just how much we can accomplish."

"Under the leadership and vision of Governor Abercrombie's energy efficiency initiatives outlined in his New Day in Hawaii Plan, we are very excited to learn that the Manoa Public Library project was awarded LEED Gold Certification," said Comptroller Dean H. Seki of DAGS. "This significant achievement demonstrates the State's commitment to lead by example in environmental and social responsibility for sustainability and conservation. These achievements bring the State closer to our goal of 70 percent clean energy by 2030, which includes 30 percent for our Energy Efficiency Portfolio target. We look forward to the new library being a wonderful part of the Manoa community."

LEED certification of Manoa Public Library is a third party verification based on a number of green design and construction features that positively impact the project itself and the broader community. These features include: 48 photovoltaic solar panels capable of generating 16.6 percent of the Library's energy usage; a high-efficiency air-conditioning system; use of carbon dioxide sensors to help the air-conditioning system adjust the amount of outside air needed to keep fresh air levels safe; a 3,000 gallon rainwater catchment tank capable of providing all the water needed to sustain outdoor landscaping; and all plants outside the Library are either endemic, indigenous to Hawaii, or canoe plants (brought to Hawaii by the ancient Hawaiians).

Your Tax Donation Helps Libraries

Hawaii taxpayers can make donations to benefit the Hawaii State Public Library System (HSPLS) just by checking a box located at the top of their state tax returns. Taxpayers can designate $2.00 from an individual income tax return or $4.00 from a joint return, for the Hawaii Public Libraries Fund. A total of $71,890 was donated to Hawaii's public libraries in 2012, which enabled HSPLS to purchase books and other materials for patrons of all ages statewide.

"We invite all Hawaii taxpayers to take advantage of this easy and effortless opportunity to help your public libraries," said State Librarian Richard Burns. "Mahalo nui loa to everyone who donated last year and we welcome your continuing support of Hawaii's public libraries this tax season."

Since January 2005, Hawaii taxpayers have donated $638,838 to the HSPLS Special Fund. Mahalo for your continuing support!
